For Grown-Ups: How to Use These Worksheets

5 / 5

One page at a time, once counting by tens is steady, with a pencil.

Why use it

Counting to 100 is learning a pattern, not a hundred words: the numbers 1 to 9 repeat inside every ten. The hard part is the change at every 9, from 29 to 30, because the next number needs a new decade name. Every strip here crosses a ten, so the sheet practices exactly that change.

What it is good for

- Kindergarten: the changes from 19 to 20 on up to 99 to 100, on pages 1 and 2.
- First grade: counting past 100 to 120, on page 3.
- Starting a count in the middle, not at 1.

How to use it

1. Your child reads each strip aloud, starting from its first number, not from 1.
2. At each blank, say the number before it and ask what comes next.
3. If the next ten does not come, count by tens together to find it: ten, twenty, thirty, so after 29 comes 30.
4. On page 3, watch for 1001 written for 101: your child is writing it the way it sounds.
5. Check with the answer key on page 4.

Try saying: “27, 28, 29. What comes after 29? Which ten comes next?”

Tip: A minute on one change, such as 39 to 40, meets it more often than a whole count from 1 does.
